and Ganaral Managar A NEGATIVE MAN IS NAUGHT.

Confidence in One's Self Absolutely Essential to Success.

A vaciliating, undecided, negative man can never amount to anything, no matter what his environment or adantages may be. It would be imposible. He constantly subordinates his pinions and even his plans to what thers say and think. There is no ertainty as to his action, because he s always subject to cutside influences. He never relies upon himself or the inward authority that speaks to him. He is the echo of the last man who leaded his case before him. He is remagnetized every time he comes in ontact with a new personality. Blown ither and thither by advice and opinons as opposite as the poles, like a leaf whirled on the autumn wind, no one, not even himself, knows where e will alight

The man who lives to any purpose or accomplishes anything of good in the world has an abiding faith in himself, in his forcefulness and originality, n his efficiency in the management of his own affairs, and in his power to ecomplish whatever he puts himself to do .- O. S. Marden, in Success.
